

8.8 Dunnerdale Fells (page 135)

Images from the walk to the waymarker tree.

The green path from the road passes beneath these oak and sycamore, where both trees stand like portals leading into the upper ravine of Black Stones.

Emerging beyond Black Stones, first note the lone silver birch in the flat bogland to the left, then see the 'prominent holly' snuggled into the low ridge to the right.

A small holly tree, like so many – but important to those navigating through the bog and bracken.
